Renching Union Station, the torrent rushed three feet deep through the yard, putting the locomotive fires out, marooning several hundred passengers and closing the city to incoming or outgoing traffic. In half an hour miles of transway lines were put out of commission, while a sewer undermined broke and flooded Capitol Hill, the aristocratic section of the city. A general call to physicians met with speedy response. The cellars of downtown stores and hotel were flooded. This morning the flood was at a receding point and the parties organized during the night by Mayor Arnold were prepared to begin work of surveying the flood damage and aiding its victims.
